A MESSAGE FROM

Jeffrey Gibson

San Francisco Brokerage Manager

San Francisco’s real estate market in 2021 was characterized by strong demand throughout the year as the pandemic blurred the normal seasonal patterns for buyers and sellers in the Bay Area. In contrast to the brief pause induced by the pandemic in the spring of 2020, buyers continued to look for larger homes in most neighborhoods and inventory struggled to keep pace, with the total months’ supply of inventory falling to a record low in December 2021 according to the San Francisco Multiple Listing Service.

Overall, the market recorded far more sales in 2021 than in 2020, totaling more than 7,000 for an increase of about 40% year over year. In the luxury market, typically defined as sales over $3M, the change was even more striking as sales volume shot up 78% compared to the previous year. The number of ultra-luxury sales over $10M doubled, to 24 from just 12 in 2020, with a $32M home selling to a buyer represented by Sotheby’s International Realty.

Even though single-family homes were the subject of bidding wars in many neighborhoods, with more than one listing selling for more than a million dollars over the asking price, the challenging conditions condominiums faced in 2020 meant that they also enjoyed a resurgence in 2021. As seen in the following pages, several districts saw condo sales rise dramatically, as evidenced in District 8 encompassing downtown and the northeast corner of the city where unit sales increased 48%, and nearby District 9 which includes SoMa, Mission Bay and other neighborhoods where they rose a remarkable 63%.

We hope you find this market report to be a valuable resource, and we remain available to offer advice and consultation on any of your real estate questions. From Wine Country to Silicon Valley and across the globe, we look forward to being of service to you.
