

WELCOME TO JACKSON SQUARE!

The Jackson Square Historic District is a vibrant area between downtown San Francisco and North Beach, and is rich with shopping and fine dining. It is known for its buildings dating back to the Gold Rush days and has been added to the national Register of Historic Places.

FOOD

There is no shortage of amazing restaurants in Jackson Square. Our favorites within walking distance include Cotogna (seasonal and farm-fresh Italian with a summer farmer's market), Kokkari (upscale Greek), Bix (American-French fare served in a supper club with a swanky 1930s ambiance and live jazz), Coqueta (Spanish on the Embarcadero), Kusakabe (omakase Japanese), Maison Nico (French bakery), Old Ship Saloon, and all that is to offer at the Ferry Building (Daily Driver bagels, Reem's, A16 to go, Cholita Linda, Hog Island Oyster Company).

COFFEE

There are several spots to grab coffee or tea in the morning, including: Postscript (coffee, juices, smoothies, snacks, and specialty goods), Blue Bottle, and Jackson Place Cafe, which is nestled in beautiful courtyard. There are also plenty of options at the Ferry Building, including Red Bay Coffee.

FARMER'S MARKET

The Farmer's Market at the Ferry Building is held every Saturday from 8am-2pm, with a smaller market set up on Tuesdays and Thursdays. This is known as the best farmer's market in the area, and we always found the most incredible vendors.

THE BATTERY

The Battery, a private member's club, is conveniently located across the street, and hosts weekly events, gatherings and parties, as well as having a lively restaurant, two bars, a workout and spa facility, and a pleasant outdoor space.

RETAIL

Jackson Street is home to many upscale and trendy shops, including Zimmermann, Anine Bing, APC, and Isabel Marant. There is also an Allbirds and Aesop.
